NOVELTY AND FUN ON EMPRESS BILL

HERE is a bill at the Empress this week that has novelty and plenty of fun—enough to suit the average "tired business man" who is a patron of vaudeville. Anyhow, the two audiences which witnessed the performances last evening seemed thoroughly satisfied, and theater managers will tell you that it is the opening-night patron that does the boosting, or digs the srave, for the new show.

The Girls and the Jockey" is the headliner. Two comedians, R. N. Cory and Vincent Erne, are largely responsible for the success of the tabloid musical comedy. Cory and Erne, as the Earl of Susex and Sammy, his jockey, respectively, do some clever English impersonations. That kind of "bonehead" comedy always takes if it is well done, and the two in this act do it well. An English version

WITH college songs, love songs dances and pretty scenes and acting, Menlo Moore's "Sorority Days," as presented in the Pantages theater yesterday afternoon for the first time for the week's engagement, made a decided hit. ular with those present, Miss Christine Durfus, as Dolly, seeming to be the favorite,

The play is ushered in with "Boola Boola," by the orchestra, and other selections that have become associated with college life. Then the six enter, singing and dancing, and in that way go through with the simple but pretty little play. There is just enough love-making to make the act seem real and true to college life.

In direct contrast to the bright and thoughtless college play is "Destiny," a dramatic and sensational sketch, in which real life as well as real acting is seen. William Schilling, in his difficult part as an unfortunate man guided on to destiny by an uncontrollable fate, shows skill such as is seidom seen in ordinary vaudeville playlets. The woman, Miss Bessie A. Falsom, also plays her part well, although she has little to do in comparison to the leading man. Bertram Grasshy, the reporter who finds that his contemptible rival is his brother, has much to do, but his part is not of a difficult nature like that of Mr. Schilling.

The Tyler St. Clair trio furnishes a varied programme of bell music that is greeted with much applause. The young woman in the trio is especially vivacious, her inclination to dance to the music while she is playing causing merriment and applause from the spectators.

Unique entertainment is given by Clayton and Lennie, who pose as the "Happy Chappy and the English Johnnie." Their jokes are characteristic of English humor, but they close with a song that is catchy and laughable, leaving the audience under protest.

Four acrobats give a good display of strength and agility and perform some difficult tricks.

Two interesting reels are shown in the Pantagescope, a difficult near-tragedy being worked out in the pictures with amusing results.

An unfortunate circumstance prevented the appearance of Dudak's trained bears. There were four in the cast, but the big polar bear that led the others in all the tricks died while en route to Sait Lake City. Without its leadership the others do little but eat and mourn, and their little but eat and mourn, and their little but eat and mourn, and their liner decided not to attempt the act this week.

The bill will be seen in the Pantages theater three times daily until Wednesday of next week.

The following theater notices are marked "advortisement" in order to comply with a strict interpretation of the new federal newspaper law. In no sense are they paid advertisements. They are items furnished by the press agents of the various theaters.

At the Orpheum this week Ethel Kirk and Billy Fogarty provide entertainment that really entertains. They call it "A Bright Melange." Miss Kirk is a revelation in modes that fairly make the women gasp with envy, and Fogarty a joy in action. They have a unique opening to their act that gets away from the stereotyped singing and talking turn, and sitogether their offering is fresh, breezy and a material hit on this week's bill, that is crammed full of good things culled from modern vaudeville turns.

TAKES ALLEGED WIRE TAPPER TO NEW YORK

George MacRea, said to be the last of a notorious gang of wire-tappers, passed through Sail Lake yesterday in the custody of Detective Edmund Leigh of New York. MacRea is wanted in New York on a charge of srand larceny in connection with the alleged swindling of A Jones of that city out of $20,000 on October 18, 1912. He was arrested by Detective Leigh at Redondo Beach, Cal., a few days ago. He is said to have handled millions of dollars during his career, but, according to Detective Leigh, appears to be almost without funds now and discouraged over being captured.

Morris Kaufman, a second prisoner, arrested in San Francisco and wanted in New York on a charge of perjury, is also being taken back by the New York detective, who never falls to stop in Sail Lake when passing through. He stayed in the city for a few hours yesterday, visiting Detective George E. Cleveland of the police department.

GUNSHOT WOUND FATAL TO CRAFTS

Bayard H. Crafts of Descret, Millard county, died on a train coming to this city at an early hour yesterday morning from a gunahot wound accidentally inflicted by a companion while hunting ducks. The wounded youth was being rushed here for surgical treatment when the train lost in the race with death.

The victim of the accident was 19 years of age, the son of Rayard P and Martha Coles Crafts. The family home is in Descret, whither the remains, after preparation for burial, will be sent today by the S. M. Taylor Undertaking company.
